The Passing of Summer.

The summer is passing, like birds on the wing.
The swift days are flying, like beads from a string.
They are slipping and sliding, the beautiful days,
With the flowers that wended their promiscuous ways.
The roses are gone, but the poppies are here,
And so are the lilacs white shining and clear,
And the aster in purple is fast to be seen.
Where the golden-rod meets her, a knight to her queen.
There are those who would flout them, the rich summer days,
Who for autumn and winter and spring-time have praise,
But who scorn the rich time of the year in its prime.
Nor dare to salute it in prose or in rhyme.
Not so in my thought, tho the waves of the heat
Lie silvery soft o'er the fields of wheat,
The summer brings harvest, brings vintage and bloom,
The thunder-storms break, and its clouds sometimes gloom.
Dear Summer, I love thee, I grieve at the haste
Which carries us on to the frost and the waste,
When snow-flakes will scatter, and the trumpet sound shrill for the fall of the year.
MARGARET E. SANDSTER.

On Tuesday, July 14th, was the anniversary of the fall of the Bastille, and is a day that corresponds to our Fourth of July, with the French people. M. Felix Faure, President of France, with Premier Melie and two other persons of prominence, were in the act of reviewing some troops at Long-champs, near Paris. A well-dressed man took deliberate aim and fired twice in quick succession, with a revolver, before the crowd could close in upon him and seize him. The President was not touched, and the person claims that it was not his aim to kill, but attract attention to his personal wrongs. It was learned that the would-be assassin's name is Eugene Marie Francois, a discharged foreman of the public works, and the same person who recently created a panic in the Chamber of Deputies by firing his revolver. The four cartridges that remained in the revolver were blank cartridges, and Francois asserts that he fired were also blank. All he wished was to get the attention of the President.
In June he sent threatening verses to the presiding officer of the Municipal Council, and was therefrom dismissed from his position on the public works. On the 29th of June he threw in Chamber of Deputies a pamphlet called, "Freedom of Writing in the 19th Century under Felix I." In this he spoke of the abuse of the administration, and that attempts to poison him were made wherever he went.
When Francois had fired the shot at the President, and the people rushed at him in a threatening manner, a man named Bonclant came to his rescue, exclaiming, "Well done, that is the man for me!" He was put under arrest along with Francois.
It was a strange day. A balloon was sent up and hung motionless over the city, not enough air to drift it. Many soldiers overcome by heat fell in the ranks, and all the ambulances were filled.

THE WEEKLY LETTER.

Sureties and bondsmen, when they lose by the operation, are everywhere denominated fools, while the self-satisfied neighbor who is not on the bond congratulates himself on his shrewdness and foresight, and tries to pity those whose prosperity is in jeopardy. Not everyone is strong-minded enough to say no when he is asked to put all his property as a pledge that the methods of his friend, the officer, will be careful and businesslike, and his further pledge that he is honest. A man hardly justified in asking anyone to become surety, to go on his bond, etc., except him who is under obligation to him, either of a like kind or any other. In this case one good turn deserves another.

There are a number of ways in which the wary escape the disagreeable task without giving offense to the friend who asks him. A common reply of the man is that he promised his grand-mother on her dying bed that he would never become surety for a man under any circumstances. Another man will say, "The other day I signed a bond for a friend, and the County Court made slighting remarks about my solvency, and, by thunder, sir, I am not going to lay myself open to be insulted again, sir, by that Board of Commissioners!"
The third man will say that he has been privately informed by the Courts that he is already on so many bonds as surety that they will refuse to consider his name until some of many bonds are void.
The fourth prescription, and the one which is most straightforward and honorable, is to answer "no," with no quibble or equivocation, and the more emphatic might add that they will physically injure the next man that says anything about surety to them.

There is a well-known tale about the perniciousness of going surety. Before the war, a certain sheriff was arranging to give bond, and as he was one of the great men of the county, he had a lot of the gilt-edged on his bond. While the bond was being signed, a young store clerk was standing by, and was invited to put his name to the bond, which he did with a feeling of intense pride and satisfaction, thinking it a great honor to have his name enrolled with those of the nabobs of the county.
Thirty years passed. The war came and there was a different state of affairs in the county. The sheriff and aforesaid gilt-edged associates passed away, and their estates went to partially satisfy the rapacity of their creditors. In a final adjustment of that sheriff's accounts a certain claim against him as administrator of an estate was held against him, and the only one of the sureties that was worth anything was the one-time store clerk, who had prospered, and was himself one of the capitalists of the county. In this way he was relieved of seven or eight hundred of his superfluous dollars. Thus we never know what may happen, but we can be pretty sure that it will be the unexpected.

It has been said that we are the footfalls of fate, but so a matter of fact we do not have half the chance of a well-regulated football. But in some respects we are like that article, usually puffed up and liable to "burst."

But speaking of the metaphorical football reminds me of baseball, which is now raging in our town. The attack is very severe, and includes all the boys and young men of the place. There is no sign of abatement as yet. The symptoms are high fever and delirium. In the afternoon, the patient wanders in his mind, and talks of diamonds, fields, swatting flies, twisters, whisks, tobogganing, daisy-cutters, hot liners, and other wild and mysterious talk, and the fathers fear that the boys will not recover sufficiently to be of much help this summer.

But talking seriously, we are glad to see the national game of baseball inaugurated at this place. We have only one other truly national American game, which is so called, and that is a game of cards called "poker," at which everybody loses and which is not played to any great extent in Pocahontas, as the people are down on cards. Our athletic national game is welcomed and the boys here would give their bottom dollar to win a game from the older club at Grease Bank.

When the world was young, the writer played baseball. First it was "round-town," and you struck with a flat bat and only ran on a "fly" ball. Three "tibs," or founs, was "out," and also a catch on the first bounce either behind the bat or in the field. The pitcher pitched underhanded and slow, and there was no such thing as gloves. But that is changed. The pitcher throws his best, the batter strikes with a round, heavy bat, and the catcher, with a glove as big as an elephant track, with mask, chest protector, etc., "takes the balls off the bat" and returns them to the pitcher. And its "slide, Kelly slide to first," "safe on second," and "out on third," with each player on the alert, and the old, sleepy game of "round-town" is the highly exciting and feverish game of baseball today.

CHAPTER VIII.

Abraham Lincoln, the sixteenth President of the land of the brave and the free, was a most remarkable man, yet he never spoke of it outside of his own family. He never boasted of how he became President when all he ever had in the way of education was one solitary year's schooling, yet he could have spoken of it, too, had he felt like it, for the President is a privileged character. He was not a man to abuse his privileges, and even after that year of study one of our modern public school examinations would have knocked him senseless, yet he possessed certain knowledge far beyond the ken of any school teacher in this county. He conducted an unwieldy country through four years of grief and gloom, when a barrel of flour sold for four hundred dollars and a pair of medium-sized boots for eight hundred even. The number 1 school-teacher supported by his eight-year old certificate would shudder at the prospect.

Many historians make a fatal mistake when they think this safe distance to look back and write about that violent and social military excitement best known as the civil war. One historian says a generation must pass away before a history to please everybody is written of that deplorable struggle, so I will pass along, for I don't like war anyway, especially the war you have to be civil over.

President Lincoln was just entering on his second term when he was assassinated by a mad actor named Booth. Booth was captured and shot in a burning barn and dragged forth dead. He has cropped up, so reported, in various parts of the world since then something after the manner of the wandering Jew. So Abraham Lincoln's career ended in darkness.
Andrew Johnson took his place and became the President. He had no education either, but he married an intelligent lady, whose chief virtue was a great patience, and she taught him to write and work easy sums, thereby he earned the applause of the country. During his administration the vast domain west of the Mississippi went into shape so they could be handled with ease as States. Johnson was n't very popular. He had too much to say for just a President, so they impeached him; gave him to understand he must be careful how he ruled this independent country.

Ulysses S. Grant was the eighteenth President. He had more education than all the other Presidents before him could have mustered together with a week's notice, I expect. In 1870 Virginia, Mississippi, and Texas, some of the prodigal States which had been as it were in a far country, came back into the Union and tried to appear as if nothing had happened.

Grant was President twice, when the exposures of some of his corrupt friends damaged his prospects for a third term. Hazardous disorders arise whenever anybody tries to be President more than twice. Rutherford B. Hayes was the next. There were no "moving incidents by flood or fire" to distinguish this administration, and the country began to be more respectable.

A Lady's Age.

Why is a lady reluctant to tell her real age? The question came home the other day when I saw a woman approaching the ripe and queenly period of sixty, hesitate and hedge when the query was put to her, and actually blush like a girl, when obliged to state her natal day and year, for a business reason.
Men do not feel or show the same reluctance, yet there is not one rule for men and one for us. In a vestige of the old feeling which made an unmarried woman sensitive if she was getting on, and nobody had come along to give her the privilege of having "wife of so and so," on her tombstone! What- ever is its reason, the thing is weak, and is, on the part of an elderly woman, a sign that she clings forlornly to the skirts of her lost youth, and hates the place at which she has arrived.
But fair and gracious and stately are the domains which stretch along between the mile-stones marked forty-five and seventy. And lovely is white hair, and sweet is motherhood, and blessed among women is the grand-mother, and incomparable in dignity to-day is the independent single woman, who does as she pleases, and could have married had she chosen, and sees on buttons for nobody, and has her cups of tea and her cat, and pets her sister's children. Ladies, do not mind revealing your age. All ages have their special privileges, and one need not exact another to real glory.

M. E. SANDSTER.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET

fight now on hand the bone and marrow of the land is arrayed against those unnatural and monstrous fortunes that our government has fostered. We would remind you that the rich men and their henchmen are flocking to McKinley from out the Democratic party. The farmers have arrayed themselves under the Democratic platform, which makes radical changes in existing things, while the Republican platform is a rebuke of the Democratic and Republican forces, which have brought the country to the verge of disaster. Fellow countrymen, this is a personal appeal to you. You are descendants of Democrats, as is the present Democratic citizen of the county are descendants of Whigs. In this you see you can have no objection to the name.

The writer would not make this appeal if he did not feel deeply earnestly on the subject. It is so plain to us that for the time since 1860 the barriers have been down, and there is good reason every citizen in the land to consider how he will vote. The Whig must admit that the Democrats have ceased to fight under same platform. You remember that for years and years two great parties have reaffirmed the same things, but it is different now. You are all without party until you make the solemn pledge by going to work to testify for your new party, or until you fail. Consider carefully whether or not you can cast aside the associations of your former party, which are now but the memory and join with us in the great battle against the combined wealth of Wall Street.

For us, we have chosen free labor, and expect to follow it with clear conscience to the victory which awaits it at the polls next November.

To the Patrons of the "Pocahontas Herald."

Editor Times:

I wish through the columns of your paper to offer a few words by way of explanation to the former patrons of the Herald, of which I was the editor. This article, which occupies the place of a valedictory, may come a trifle late, and many of my former patrons may already be at a loss to understand my silence.

The causes for the suspension of the Herald are numerous; among the more prominent of which are the stringency of the times, which renders collection of dues almost an impossibility, and, as you know to run even a country newspaper without funds is not within the range of any man's ability. Another drawback with which I had to contend was the limited territory in which I operated. If the Herald had succeeded beyond my most sanguine expectations, its success would not then have been marvellous, but when we consider that the newspaper business of Pocahontas was divided between the Herald and the Times, (which, for the first time, I now admit to be one of the best county newspapers published in the State), it will readily be seen that the Herald labored against a strong current.

Until the Herald was sold last week under a deed of trust which was placed upon the plant by Dilley, the former owner, and with which we had nothing to do, I had hoped to effect some satisfactory arrangement by which the paper could be continued. In this I was disappointed. This explains my protracted silence. I only waited until I knew exactly how I stood before I announced my position to the public.

In conclusion I wish to express my gratitude to my patrons for the patience with which they have borne my many shortcomings. While my connection with the Herald has not been in all things as I could have wished it, yet many phases of the newspaper business have endeared it to me, and it is not without a sigh that I lay down my pen and turn down another path of life.

I wish also, Mr. Editor, to extend my thanks to you for the consideration and ever unfailing kindness that you have shown heretofore to your rival newspaper.

I wish to assure the Herald subscribers that arrangements will be made in the near future to refund to such of them as have overpaid their subscriptions any balance that may be due them.

Respectfully,
S. B. SCOTT, JR.

The Revolution in Crete.

In the Mediterranean, south of the Aegean Sea, is the island of Crete, with a population of less than three hundred thousand, and an area about one-third as large as New Hampshire. Were it not for our Presidential campaign and the Cuban rebellion our people would be in a ferment about this island, so renowned in history, sacred and profane, because of an insurrection now in progress there against the Turks. The things complained of are violated promises, excessive taxes, and official injustice and cruelty. The contending parties, with few exceptions, are of the same stock of people, mainly of Greek origin, and speak the same language. The differences that separate them into hostile factions originate in their religious belief—Christians and Mohammedans. The Moslems are the descendants of the renegade Greeks, who when the Turks subdued the island two centuries ago, renounced their religion and became Moslems for official preference. The Christians are much more numerous, and the animosity between the parties are so bitter that murders and vendettas are numerous, even when there is no actual war.

In 1867 Turkey proposed an insurrection with difficulty by giving Crete a mere form of a constitution, but in 1878 the Berlin Congress made a recommendation that let Turkey, by the Halaupa pact, to confer on Crete real self-government with an elective assembly, manhood suffrage, and a fixed term of office for the Governor-General. Making a pretext of a revolutionary movement occurring in 1888, Turkey, in 1889, withdrew most of the privileges afforded by the "Halaupa pact," and never restored them so there has been discontent ever since, and open insurrection of frequent occurrence. The pending crisis became serious last March, when a Christian Governor was removed and a Mohammedan put in his place. The Christians thought that this act meant that Turkey never intended to restore their constitutional privileges.

In April, the "Epitropi," a reform committee organized by opposition. Fighting has taken place between the rebels and Turkish troops. Villages have been pillaged and burned. Thirty thousand Turkish troops have been sent to the front to put down the rebellion. The Greeks are very pronounced in their expressions of sympathy and are pressing their government to render material aid and comfort and this makes the situation much more threatening, as serious complications would arise were Greece to intrude. It is an old saying, "When Greek meets Greek, then comes the tug of war." S. C. N.

Judge Adam C. Snyder.

As was announced last week Judge Adam C. Snyder died at his home in Lewisburg on Friday July 24th. From an extended notice in the Independent, we learn that he was in the 63rd year of his age. He was a native of Highland Co., Va., and was the son of John and Elizabeth Snyder highly respected persons, and among the earlier settlers of Crabbottom section of what was Pendleton County, before the formation of Highland. He received his academic preparation for college at Mosey Creek Academy, Va., while in charge of Maj. Jed Hotchkiss, whose son-in-law he was. He was a member of the Academy, Penn. His collegiate studies were pursued in Dickinson College, Penn., and finished up at Washington College, Lexington, Va., in 1856. He studied law with Judge Brockenbrough, whose instructions were so useful in helping him to become so famous an advocate, counselor and Judge. In 1859, he located at Lewisburg, W. Va., where he has practiced law ever since except the interval of a year. He enlisted in Co. E, 27 Va. Regt., a part of the "Stonewall Brigade" and finally became adjutant of his Regiment and was holding that position when captured. He was wounded severely in the first battle of Manassas, July 21st 1861. He participated in all the battles and famous expeditions of "Stonewall" Brigade until 1863, when he was captured, and remained a prisoner of war until 1864, when he was discharged, but being broken in health by wound, disease and the privations of prison life, he was not in service any more. He resumed his profession at the close of the war, and along with his legal duties performed some journalistic work, that is believed to have been largely instrumental in imparting to his style that soundness, conciseness and clearness that make his papers so remarkable.

He was a member of the West Virginia Court of Appeals from 1882 until 1890 when he resigned. At the time of his resignation he was President of the Supreme Court of West Virginia. His manner of treating all questions inspired confidence and secured the respect of those even whose interests may have suffered by the decisions handed down by him. However, his high ability and his position as President of the Supreme Court of West Virginia, and his pride of his ability and achievements at the bar, on the battle field and the Supreme Bench, those best acquainted with him esteem him more because of his personal virtues, as husband and father, friend and neighbor. His wife was Miss Henrietta H. Carey, daughter of Wm. and Ophelia Matthews Cary, of Lewisburg, who survives him with five children, four sons and a daughter. At the time of his decease he was President of the Lewisburg Bank, and largely interested in the mineral properties in the two Virginias. His illness was long and lingering but not of a character to cause serious apprehension until a week previous to his death and termination.

His funeral took place at the Presbyterian Church on Saturday July 25. Messrs. White and Telford officiating and the Masonic Lodge of Lewisburg, and Ronceverte acting as pall-bearers and concluding the services at the grave with the burial ritual of that fraternity. The Greenbrier county Bar attended in a body and a large concourse of the friends of the lamented Judge.

The money policy of the government of the United States for the past twenty-three years is now on trial, and the verdict is to be rendered by the voters at the November polls. The accusation to be considered is to the effect that the money powers and those in the control of our financial interests have so combined and worked together, and so reduced the volume of the circulating medium as to double the value of their money, and diminish by one-half or more the value of property and the services of the toilers in the shops, farms, and mines. No matter how positive assertions may be to the contrary, and however ingeniously perversions may be presented to mislead and arouse partisan animosity, nevertheless the issue exists between the laboring, wage-earning people, contending for their rights to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness in their respective callings, and the money people of Europe and America, aiming to hold the human race in their power by monopolizing and controlling the circulating medium. It looks as if the people after twenty-three years are beginning to find out what has been hurting them, and what has been the matter with their pecuniary interests. And can it be possible that we are mistaken in the opinion that a working majority of the voters of the United States, "the land of the free and the home of the brave," will vote for a Presidential candidate like Mr. Bryan, whose public record and personal character would be a safe guarantee that he would obey the Constitution, be guided by the counsels and example of the fathers of the Republic, and do all in his power to reestablish the coinage laws of Hamilton and Jefferson, under which laws the people prospered for seventy years? It does seem to be something too strange to be true that any voter saying, in the honesty of his heart, "I want a dollar to be a dollar all over the world," and then register his vote in the interests of gold speculators, bond holders, and money-changers, persons who have either designedly or undesignedly made the United States as it now stands a government of Wall Street banks and stock jobbers, and refuse to all other citizens, to the full extent of their power, any effective participation in the administration of public affairs in the interests of those whose living depends upon the sweat of their brows. The people may be slow to find out things but they are generally sure.

Vacation Time

Is at hand and is gladly welcomed by all, especially those whose duties in life have caused them to greatly run down their system to meet the requirements, physical and mental, forced upon them. With those and others, it is important, whether at home, at the sea-shore or in the country, that some thought be given to diet, and as further assistance to Nature, a good building-up medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla had best be resorted to. If the digestion is poor, liver deranged and frequent headaches seem to be the rule, Hood's will change all this and enable everyone to return to their home and business in a refreshed state of mind and bodily health.

Notice.

The Weekly Letter.

Opie Reed, our representative novelist, says that there is no great difference between the success and failure of a country newspaper. From his writing he has evidently been a newspaper man in a small way, and knows all that makes and mars the life of a man who owns a country newspaper. More than that, he has not only dipped into the philosophy of business, but he has dipped into the cases and set up letter after letter and precept after precept. There have been moments when his whole life was "pi," and a sudden dab of ink on his best breeches have made the whole world seem black to him.

Opie Reed would have even found romance in the newspaper business in Pocahontas. He could have made a hero out of the Marlinton editor, and married him off (which he can't do himself) to some lovely girl, with whom he would have lived happily for quite awhile. Opie Reed never quits until he marries his editors: those he likes he weds to the most beautiful girls; the creation of his delightful fancy; those editors he dislikes he has married to the sour visaged old maids, for he is a just novelist and never disappoints his readers.

We have had an epoch in the newspaper business in Pocahontas, and in the retirement of Hon. Sam B. Scott from the newspaper business journalism loses a man whose versatile powers enabled him to startle the native with his pen. Something over a month ago the Pocahontas Herald, which a great many have classed as an opposition to our sheet, rounded its third birthday, and the weeks that it had missed could be numbered on the fingers of both hands. According to the custom of many editors this was seized upon as an occasion to give vent to some gush such as "safely through another year," and the great things that should be done in the coming cycles of time. This article to which we refer was up to the standard, but the trouble of this prospectus was that it did not live up to itself. No more issues appeared. It did not materialize.

The editor of that paper does not understand the mechanical part so well, and he was tired of the glory of an editorial career, so when his printing force succumbed to weariness, he wrapped the drapery of his couch about him and lay down to pleasant dreams. He declared that "cussing in his office had ceased to be a virtue," and went out of the newspaper business as cheerfully as ever man left the penitentiary.

Now for the present we have the field. We hope to live up to the responsibility of running the opinions of the county until some other adventurer sets up in the hoodoo office across the street. "The world of fools has such a store," however that we may expect to find plenty of people who are not averse to running a newspaper in Pocahontas. We feel like challenging the world to have a bout at printing, "not for pleasure or fortune, but for the honor of our ladies and the advancement of civility."

Heart Was Affected.

COURTESY, W. VA. July 24, 1896.
I had a pain in my left side and was not able to lie on that side for a number of years. My heart was also badly affected. Since I have taken a few bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla I am able to sleep on my left side without any difficulty. I have given Hood's Sarsaparilla to our little girl for stomach trouble and I believe it saved her life.

A History of the United States.

BY S. A. P.
CHAPTER IX.

James A. Garfield was the twentieth President for about half a year. Ten weeks of that time he was slowly dying. A man named Guiteau shot him. The assassin had a long trial, and every effort was made to prove him insane. He was found to be an office-seeker and a visionary politician, and he was hanged.

President Garfield died of a fever and other high diseases of Europe expressed their sorrow at such a crime. This is a notable fact, and all historians are very careful to mention it.

President Arthur was formally inaugurated and served the country diligently. During his administration an attempt was made to cut a ship canal through the Isthmus of Panama, and Arctic explorations were made towards the North Pole. These enterprises drew forth much heroism and suffering, but no great results from either. Also these times were marked by the completion of the Brooklyn Bridge. Most people know what that is.

Then, after wars and floods, droughts, conflagrations, earthquakes, tornadoes, and cyclones for a quarter of a century the first Democratic President was elected and duly inaugurated. His name was Grover Cleveland. His four years happened to be easy ones for the United States, and the President attracted considerable attention by his wise governing powers. He was so much admired in the South that when he was nominated the second time for President they gave him every vote they could lay their hands on, but he was defeated by Benjamin Harrison.

We have now traced our history up to a time when the great events are so recent that they scarcely appear historical. Grover Cleveland is President now, but will not be that exalted personage much longer. There is another man in view for that office, and as one breezy newspaper remarks, "we'll elect him this year if it don't rain," and Grover Cleveland in his diminished glory will sink into obscurity.

Lord Byron, the piddly but accomplished poet, who had a crooked foot that caused him to walk in crooked paths and erring ways, but who wrote poetry for all time and times, gives us this grand picture: "Here is the moral of all human tales: 'Tis but the same rehearsal of the past; First freedom and then glory—when that fails, Wealth, vice, corruption, barbarism at last; And History with his volume vast Hath but one blotted page!"

There will be a hot match game of baseball at Green Bank Saturday afternoon between Marlinton and Green Bank.

Mr. Andrew McElwaine, of Mississippi, is here on a visit.
Mr. Joe Taylor has gone to Red Bank for Miss Grace Bryant.
Miss Veranda Arbogast spent Sunday night in town.

Sweeper made a flying trip to Edray and Marlinton Saturday. The singing at Driscoll and Frost Sunday was largely attended.

Mr. Henry Shelds has purchased the best engine and thrasher in the county, so says the people.

Mr. William McClure moved his engine from here today to Edray, where he will run a dry-land mill.

Mr. R. M. Pritchard and family are visiting here.

Keep your eye on the indicator. The gobber's head will fly.

L. E. Gum says it will be free silver or another war,—its a boy.

Dr. O. J. Campbell performed on the mouth organs here last week.

GREEN BANK.

The lightning, thunder and rain cometh all together, and people are complaining of rain and harvest all together. The army worm is having a living on the oats crop; which is in many fields entirely destroyed, and some meadows the same. There is also a web on the apples in some sections. Crops are fine, but stock is not fattening as it should,—the grass is too watery.

Frank C. Burner, of Travelers Rest, delivered a lecture on the Epworth League, at this place on last Saturday evening, and organized a class here, which we hope will result in much good.

Mrs. J. H. Curry and Mrs. E. F. Arbogast are out on a visit to Mill Point and Academy at this writing.

Mrs. Dr. J. M. Cunningham and Miss Sadie Young are visiting in this vicinity at this time.

Mr. W. W. Slavin and son, Gordon, are off to Mill Point.

We have had four good drying days together for the first time in several months.

It was reported last week that Zack Nottingham was lost. Search being made found him in the cellar in a box with the lid down. He did not know how to eat. It was a fine boy come to stay with him.

W. W. Arbogast has a smile as long as a cow track in the mud. It is a fine girl boarder.

Mr. C. P. Kerr is off to Beverly Elkins, and other points. He was accompanied by Nina McClinton to Beverly.

Prof. J. A. McLaughlin will teach the Green Bank school this winter. He is a good teacher.

GREEN BANK.

We had a very heavy rain in this part on last Saturday night. The high waters have done much damage to roads and farm lands. It has been so wet that it was almost impossible for people to save their wheat.

Army worms have made their appearance, and are sweeping everything before them. Charles P. Collins had a fine field of oats nearly destroyed by them. They seem to be only in spots, and seem to be diminishing owing to the extremely hot weather.

Mrs. William Cassel has been very ill, but is much improved at this time, and Mrs. George Tacy is better.

James C. went to see his best girl. Look out for the failed calf. There will be plenty of fruit in this section. Fine corn in this part. Charlie Cassel has the largest crop of corn. Charlie is a hustler.

Meadows are good, and not much mowing done as yet, owing to the wet weather.

Quincy Fongue has bought most all the lambs in this part and some fat cattle.

Our country is improving. We have a new wheat Derry Grange carrying a line of dry goods and general merchandise.

C. F. Collins has been afflicted nearly as bad as poor old Job with boils, all of which he bore with the same patience.

Mr. Abram Rhineberry has been on the Mountain buying calves. Success to Abram.

A. SUBSCRIBER.

Warm, and hay-making in full blast. Corn good, fine crops of apples in this section, also plenty of blackberries.

Messrs. G. W. Whitting and W. B. Hill bought a fine lot of sheep on the Creek for Col. Robinson.

Mr. L. C. McMillion had a runaway last week of this kind: the mowers ran off with the horses down the mountain back ways.

Heavy rains in this section, but no damage done.

Prof. E. C. Eagle had quite an interesting case in Greenbrier Co. last week, and came out victorious.

If you want bargains call on W. B. Hill & Co. They will treat you right.

Our Future President.
Hon. Wm. Jennings Bryan, Democratic nominee for President is of Virginia parentage. He was born in Salem, Illinois thirty six years ago, was graduated from the Illinois College, and studied law with the late Lyman Trumbull. He was elected by the Nebraska Democrats to Congress in 1890, where he served on the committee of Ways and Means. His speeches in favor of free-trade gave him much reputation as an orator. He was an enthusiastic admirer of Wm. L. Wilson and helped carry that gentleman when he was borne on the shoulders of friends in the exuberance of their joy at the passage of the Wilson Bill in Congress.

Upon leaving Congress, he became Editor of the Omaha World-Herald for a time. He resides in Lincoln, Nebraska. As his first manifesto thru the press he announced that in order that he may have no ambition but to discharge faithfully the duties of his office, if elected he will, under no circumstances, be a candidate for reelection.

By common consent, it is believed the eloquent speech he made in the Convention secured his nomination, when closing the debate on the platform reported by the Committee of resolutions. Mr. Bryan said, "It is the issue of 1776 over again. Our ancestors when but three millions had the courage to declare their political independence of every other nation on earth. Shall we, their descendants, when we have grown to seventy millions, declare that we have less independence than our fore-fathers? No, my friends, it will never be the judgment of this people.

Therefore, we are not upon what lines the battle is fought. If they say bimetalism is good but we can not have it until some nation helps us, we reply that instead of having a gold standard because England has, we shall restore bimetalism and then let England have bimetalism, because the United States has. If they dare come out in the open and defend the gold standard as a good thing, we shall fight them to the uttermost, having behind us the producing masses of this nation and the world. Having behind us the commercial and laboring interests and all the tiling masses we shall answer their demands for a gold standard by saying to them, You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns. You shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold." Nothing has been heard from him since the outbreak of the Revolution exclaimed "Give no liberty or give no death." We are the theshorthorn of men to these words, "You shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold."

Hood's Sarsaparilla. Had Cured

Others, and It Cured Me.

"It was sixteen years ago my right leg was the worst case in three dreadful years. I tried all kinds of salves and ointments but the worst the same was. I had to walk on crutches and a greater part of the time was confined to my bed. I could not sleep at night and my eyes became inflamed.

I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla and the third is almost closed. My eyes have been benefited so I can read and write and also thank my gentle for saving without the use of glasses. I came to see Hood's Sarsaparilla by noticing advertisements.

I reasoned that what has cured others would cure me and it has proved so.

It is a splendid medicine." Mrs. KERR
